Kalam Institute of Health Technology (KIHT), which is a Government of India project and also a WHO

Kalam Institute of Health Technology (KIHT), which is a Government of India project and also a WHO Collaboration Centre for Health Innovations. It aims to facilitate focused research on critical components pertaining to medical devices focusing assistive technology, by supporting institutions involved with R&D, industry, policy makers and knowledge repositories. This shall be achieved through transfer of technical knowledge and bringing strategic and coherent synergy of scientific facilities and institutions to compliment efforts on industrial promotion in the medical devices segment. It lives to bring increased access to affordable health products to citizens and a thriving medical device manufacturing sector in India.

It gives me immense pleasure & pride to recommend my senior colleague Dr. Kavita Kachroo to become IAPB Group C Elected Trustee. As evident from her comprehensive profile spanning most in the managing and understanding of the governance of organisation with full commitment, she has always been in mission mode to run the show to best of her capability. Her mission has been aimed at ensuring quality, safety and affordable health technology intervention for large marginalized and under privileged section of global population. She is all set to be an asset in health technology global arena.
